SCHOOL REPORT.

The schools for the past year on the whole have been fairly successful, several exceptionally so, some have not been satisfactory in every respect. The attendance has been less than it ought to be without, it seems to us, sufficient cause. Schools are for the education of our children. If for any reason, they are allowed to absent themselves no benefit of course can be derived from them. Hence, it becomes the duty of parents and guardians to see to it that their scholars are in the school-room every day when the school is in session unless some emergency above the usual prevents. It is also deemed a duty all parents owe their children, never to let neighborhood jealousies and personal prejudices, such as are liable to exist in many communities, to exercise their disturbing influence in the school. When people arrive to that degree of perfection when all interested will co-operate to make our schools successful, our children, in the line of an education, will have more to show for the money expended in support of our public schools. While it is the aim of the school board to hire the best teachers our means will command, mistakes are some times made and we do not feel satisfied ourselves, but we do not feel justified in making a change until the next term. Now if all interested would unite with the school board and teacher, in making the school as profitable as possible, under the circumstances, profit would usually result. Since criticisms like the above usually apply to the few and not the many, we feel that in justice to the majority it is proper to say that we fully appreciate the support accorded those schools that have been so eminently successful the past year.

As evidence that the spirit of progress is still among us we would refer to the fact that flag poles have recently been erected at the East and Center school-houses from which float the flag of our country when the schools are in session. The school-room at East Unity has also been supplied with an organ, Webster's Unabridged International Dictionary and a Rochester hanging lamp. All have been paid for by private subscription. Such evidences as these certainly speak well for the enlightened enterprise of our citizens.
